

Gary Stickland short biography – Eco focus

Gary is a career hotelier passionate about guest service standards within a socially and environmentally sustainable business. Recently he has specialised in boutique properties with an added social and environmental aspect. He has held the role of General Manager at Alto Hotel on Bourke which is recognised as a leader in sustainable tourism within the City of Melbourne and globally.

A hands on approach to environmental sustainability has provided many successes and not so successful attempts. While he is not a builder or scientist he provides an insight into the daily operations of a business that has deployed facilities management and services that are practical, provide cost saving and a smaller eco footprint.

Gary represents the hotel at several associations and groups and currently sits on the Melbourne City Council, Hospitality Advisory Board. He is a sort after speaker on sustainable tourism.
